THE PLANET GRAB - Executive Summary

In the name of saving the climate and Nature, a Planet Grab is underway. A third to half the world including the majority of Indigenous Peoples' territories, peasants' land and Africa are at risk. This unprecedented global land and ocean grab may displace up to a billion people. Its drivers include false solutions to climate change such as Net Zero pledges, carbon offsets based on all ecosystems and living beings like whales, an explosive expansion of so-called protected areas, and greenwashed mining and drilling galore. Under the auspices of the United Nations' negotiations on climate change and biodiversity, the converging, compounded colonialisms of carbon offsets, conservation and extractivism are advancing quickly to stake their claims to both grab and govern half the world. The Planet Grab analyzes and quantifies how much of Mother Earth these different drivers of the Planet Grab want and provides you with a crucial tool for resistance.
